

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A treadmill for performing physical exercise, comprising, on a supporting frame, a belt that winds continuously around a main roller and a 5 free roller; elements for varying the inclination of the supporting frame which are driven by the motion of the belt produced by the energy supplied by the user being also provided.